Mr. Lee Simms
Water Rights
Salt Lake City, Ut.

Dear Mr. Simms,

I have had a long talk with Councilmen Bradshaw since he and I have received word and answer to the questions in my letter. I have been informed and have learned that a couple of statements in my letter are either wrong or were not called for.

In the third paragraph I should not have stated that the Councilmen Bradshaw was hoping for a certain answer. This was an assumption on my part.

In the seventh paragraph, I stated that the City had purchased a branch of the Harris-Willis system. The City, in fact, purchased a branch system from some individuals who had ask the Harris-Willis system to deliver their City stream to them. City water is being supplied through Harris-Willis and this problem can be best cleared up by connecting to the City System.

In the eighth paragraph concerning the measurement of Harris-Willis water, and as I told you on the telephone, there is a way it can be measured. The Beaver River Water Commissioner needs to calibrate a scale and then he would be able to determine the flow. He has not done this and he as had concerns about it, hence my comments that it is un-measured. Harris-Willis has not used more than its share of the water to date and the only time a measuring devise really comes into play is when we all need to cut back,

I feel that there are always two sides to a story, and if the things I have been told and have understood prove to be inaccurate, then I will have at learned some new sides, but hopefully will have acted in the best interests of Beaver City.

Again, Thank you for your time and efforts.

Sincerely,
